BLUE HOUR

TIFFANY CLARKE HARRISON

- Fearless, timely, blazing with voice, Blue Hour is a fragmentary debut with unignorable storytelling power
- A lyrical postcolonial novel that examines motherhood in the midst of uncertainty, buried trauma and an unravelling America, delving into complex topical issues from grief and miscarriage to interracial relationships and police brutality
- The perfect next read for fans of Raven Leilani's Luster, Jenny O'Connell's Dept. of Speculation and Bernardine Evaristo's Girl, Woman, Other

**One of Barack Obama's Summer Reading Selections, 2023****

What is motherhood in the midst of uncertainty, buried trauma and an unravelling America? What it's always been – a love song.

Our narrator is a gifted photographer, an uncertain wife, an infertile mother, a biracial woman in an America that's coming undone. As she grapples with a lifetime of ambivalence about motherhood, yet another act of police brutality makes headlines, and this time the victim is Noah, a boy in her photography class.

Unmoored by the grief of a recent, devastating miscarriage and Noah's fight for his life, she worries she can no longer chase the hope of having a child, no longer wants to bring a Black body into the world. Yet her husband Asher – contributing white Jewish genes alongside her Black-Japanese ones to any potential child – is just as desperate to keep trying.

Throwing herself into a new documentary on motherhood and making secret visits to Noah in the hospital, this is when she learns she is, impossibly, pregnant. As life shifts once more, she must decide what she dares hope for the shape of her future to be.

‘With every word, Blue Hour cautions against holding back: from being seen, heard and understood; from persevering in spite of forces that would see you destroyed; and from expressing love on every possible occasion, before your chances run out’ – *Chicago Review of Books

An unflinching and emotionally insightful debut about cultural identity, homesickness, love and loss.

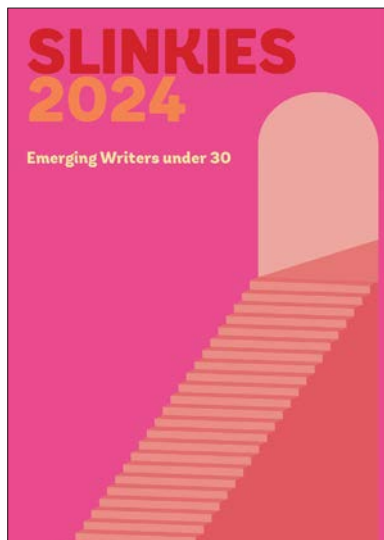

In the five years following his brother's death, Aaron has built himself a life of solitary routines. After moving from Dublin to Boston, and illegally overstaying her visa, Róisín has done the same.

When the two meet on a night out, they each find in the other something missing in their lives. A semblance of home.

Their relationship is complicated by their disparate religious backgrounds – Aaron is Jewish; Róisín is atheist – and by the harsh realities of everyday life. Just as they're pushed to their breaking point, Róisín realises she is pregnant.

Placeholders is a poignant story of loneliness corrected and the transformative power of love.

'Humane, heartfelt and beautifully observed. Roseman raises huge questions about identity, belonging and family, excelling in his depiction of the small, everyday exchanges which make or break a relationship. ## MAMMOTH

EVA BALTASAR, TRANSLATED BY JULIA SANCHES

- Latest novel from the International Booker Prize-shortlisted author of Boulder and the Indie Next pick Permafrost
- Develops the sensual, earthy style, the wild metaphors, the punchy and exaggerated style for which Baltasar is known

The follow up novel to International Booker-shortlisted Boulder is a story of queer motherhood and survival deep in the countryside

Mammoth's protagonist is a disenchanted young lesbian. She's inexperienced, irritated by life, eager to gestate, and determined to strip everything else down to essentials. She seduces men at random, swaps her urban habitat for an isolated farmhouse, befriends a shepherd, nurses lambs, battles stray cats, waits tables, cleans house, and dabbles in sex work – all in pursuit of life in the raw.

This small bomb of a novel, not remotely pastoral, builds to a howling crescendo of social despair, leaving us at the mercy of Eva Baltasar's wild voice.

She endures relentless taunting and bullying at the hands of her classmates; she takes care of her great-aunt, the garden and home, and the rabbits; and forages for mushrooms in the forest, all while her mother works long, back-breaking shifts at the state asylum. But it's her peculiar little sister, Angie, who worries her the most. Angie is obsessed with nuclear war, Rambo, zombies, a Russian invasion of their community, and the ominous, tarot-like cards that she creates that somehow speak to her. As if all that weren't enough, Sheila feels an unexplainable weight around her neck. Is it the ancient and strange mountain that they live on that casts its shadow on her, or something or someone else unknown? Unseen?

When a pair of female hikers are brutally murdered on the nearby Appalachian trail, Sheila and Angie find themselves inexorably drawn into the hunt for the killer. As the ever-present threat of violence looms larger, the mountain might be the only thing that can save them from the darkness consuming their home and their community.

ON STRIKE AGAINST GOD
JOANNA RUSS, EDITED BY ALEC POLLAK

- Reissuing an out-of-print classic
- Over the last two decades, Russ has shed her status as a semi-subcultural cult figure and claimed a popular spotlight all her own; her growing media presence attests to widespread public interest in her life and work

A lost feminist masterwork by feminist and speculative fiction icon Joanna Russ about a lesbian's coming-to-consciousness during the social upheaval of the 1970s.

When Esther, an English professor living in 1970s small-town New York, has her first lesbian love affair, the fallout brings her everyday miseries into focus and sends her spiraling. Confronted with the homophobia of straight feminists and the misogyny of gay men, Esther is left to forge a language for her feminism and her burgeoning lesbian desire. A darkly comedic story of feminist love, hope, and reckoning, On Strike Against God's call to readers – 'Let's be reasonable. Let's demand the impossible' – rings urgently true today.

Originally published in 1980, On Strike Against God is the only realist novel by feminist science fiction icon Joanna Russ. This new critical edition includes previously unpublished alternate endings to the novel, letters between Joanna Russ and acclaimed poet Marilyn Hacker, and additional essays by Russ.

COMMISSION OF TEARS

ANTONIO LOBO ANTUNES, TRANSLATED BY ELIZABETH LOWE

- In this novel, Lobo Antunes delves into this traumatic period of Angola's history through the fragmented memories and dreams of a broken woman

António Lobo Antunes's twenty-fifth novel, Commission of Tears (2011, Comissão das Lágrimas) is set during the Angolan Civil War (1975-2002). Angola attained official independence on November 11, 1975 and, while the stage was set for transition, a combination of ethnic tensions and international pressures rendered Angola's hard-won victory problematic.

As with many post-colonial states, Angola was left with both economic and social difficulties which translated into a power struggle between the three predominant liberation movements. The People's Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA), formed in December of 1956 as an offshoot of the Angolan Communist Party, had as its support base the Ambundu people and was largely supported by other African countries, Cuba, and the Soviet Union.

ALL OUR ORDINARY STORIES

A Multigenerational Family Odyssey

TERESA WONG

- All Our Ordinary Stories* is Teresa Wong's follow-up to Dear Scarlet, her acclaimed 2019 graphic memoir about her struggle with postpartum depression in the form of a letter to her daughter
- All Our Ordinary Stories* joins a long list of celebrated graphic memoirs delving into their authors' fraught relationships with their parents while also exploring complicated family histories

From the author of Dear Scarlet comes a graphic memoir about the obstacles one daughter faces as she attempts to connect with her immigrant parents.

Beginning with her mother's stroke in 2014, Teresa Wong takes us on a moving journey through time and place to locate the beginnings of the disconnection she feels from her parents. Through a series of stories – some epic, like her mother and father's daring escapes from communes during China's Cultural Revolution, and some banal, like her quitting Chinese school to watch Saturday morning cartoons – Wong carefully examines the cultural, historical, language, and personality barriers to intimacy in her family, seeking answers to the questions 'Where did I come from?' and 'Where are we going?' At the same time, she discovers how storytelling can bridge distances and help make sense of a life.

SOMETHING, NOT NOTHING

A Story of Grief and Love

SARAH LEAVITT

- A moving and beautifully illustrated graphic memoir about grief and loss
- Sarah's journey of grief and navigating a new life will resonate with readers whose lives have been disrupted by COVID and the loss and disorientation it has caused countless people

A poignant graphic memoir about the power of art to transform and heal after the death of a loved one.

In April 2020, cartoonist Sarah Leavitt's partner of twenty-two years, Donimo, died with medical assistance after years of severe chronic pain and a rapid decline at the end of her life. About a month after Donimo's death, Sarah began making comics again as a way to deal with her profound sense of grief and loss. The comics started as small sketches but quickly transformed into something totally unfamiliar to her. Abstract images, textures, poetic text, layers of watercolour, ink, and coloured pencil – for Sarah, the journey through grief was impossible to convey without bold formal experimentation. She spent two years creating these comics.

The result is Something, Not Nothing, a book that delicately articulates the vagaries of grief and the sweet remembrances of enduring love. Moving and impressionistic, Something, Not Nothing shows that alongside grief, there is room for peace and joy.

CATHERINE MCNAMARA

- McNamara writes about bodies and their sexual urges with candour, élan and precision

**Shortlisted for the Prime Minister’s Literary Awards 2024 – Fiction****

A wayward, wanton selection of stories grounded in displacement, desire, and the wish coursing through us to accede to the state of love. There is torment and illness, crude reality and distant fragrant places, peopled by characters that reside close to our bones, our psyches, our flesh. A Japanese soprano has lost her voice and seeks repose on a sailing boat in Corsica. A South African advertising executive learns the ropes at his Accra office. Destructive lovers interview a renowned musician in dusty Bamako. In London, a Rome-based man happens upon a woman from the past, bringing back a passionate interlude he has hidden from himself. Lovers meet, fade, delude. We are weak and defiant beings, ever-learning, ever-lustful.

IN THE PHOTOGRAPH

LUKE BEESLEY

- A new collection of prose poems by an acclaimed writer, artist and musician – a master of the surreal and the observational
- Luke Beesley’s previous book, Aqua Spinach, was shortlisted for the ALS Gold Medal

**Shortlisted for the Prime Minister’s Literary Awards 2024 – Poetry****

The poems in In the Photograph unfold in domestic and suburban settings. They capture the exact moment of writing: how, from it, possibilities branch out into observation, memory, word play, analogy, fantasy, other artworks and other art forms. Cinema, photography, theatre, painting and music all move freely in and out of the poem’s frame.

The writing revels in humour and narrative surprise: twists in syntax, jump cuts in time, jump cuts from one category of experience into another.

THE CYPRIAN

AMY CRUTCHFIELD

- Powerful debut which interrogates the nature of love in its various forms

**Shortlisted for the Prime Minister’s Literary Awards 2024 – Poetry****

From poems of desire and sexual longing to poems of love in the face of death, The Cyprian explores the joy and heartbreak love weaves into our lives. The collection confronts some of our primary questions about love: how is it possible to accept the death of the beloved? What role does deception play in love? When does love become a force of exploitation? The collection is composed of five parts, reflecting the different aspects of Aphrodite, the goddess of love and beauty – a complexity which is also implicit in the ambiguity of the book’s title, ‘the Cyprian’.

THE DRAMA STUDENT
AUTUMN ROYAL

- Intense, dramatic, theatrical – an important new poetry collection which draws its strength from its confrontation with grief and mourning

**Shortlisted for the Prime Minister’s Literary Awards 2024 – Poetry****

As its title suggests, the poems in Autumn Royal’s The Drama Student explore theatrical responses to life. And in particular, the staging of the emotional life. The subject, a student of experience, and a writer with an uncertain future, feels her vulnerability and dependency. Grief is paramount among her emotional responses, provoked by hauntings of violence, the death of loved ones, the failure of relationships, the disappointment of her aspirations. The great fear: ‘I am threatened / with an exceptional ability and no means / of expression.’
